The CIPAST consortium

Experience in public participation has reached a critical mass. Organisational learning, dissemination of good practices across institutions and countries, as well as critical self-reflection are now to be achieved among practitioners and users of participatory methods & procedures. Public participation has its roots in various arenas and bodies which belong to different spheres and are not always linked together. The CIPAST consortium aims to bring these actors together. Pooling their various capacities, and integrating their various contextual perspectives through a common platform, will provide an opportunity to disseminate useful practices more efficiently. The overall objective is to boost innovation and foster the emergence of a European culture of participatory democracy in scientific and technological issues.

The CIPAST consortium is funded by an EU grant of the Directorate-General for Research, Directorate C "Science and Society".

The CIPAST Training Workshops

As part of its programme of activities, the CIPAST consortium organises two training workshops:

- Dresden Training Workshop, June 2006
- Naples Training Workshop, Summer 2007

These workshops will present the state of the art knowledge on public participation in science and technology and will refer to concrete experiences in European countries. Training activities will include: general lectures, case studies, networking sessions and participatory exercises. The first workshop will be hosted by the Deutsches Hygiene-Museum, the second workshop will be hosted by Città della Scienza: institutions with extensive experience in participatory practices.
